Tent City Items

The Tent City season of 1908 is rapidly drawing to a close. With the celebration of the Modern Woodmen of America, which commenced on Friday last, and closes with today, the end of the season will be fittingly observed with the closing of their celebration. The patronage for the month of August has been exceedingly gratifying to the management, and the fame of Tent City as a summering place has been more widely advertised than ever before by the host of patrons who have gone away and spoken words of praise for the ideal conditions that are prevalent on this peninsula. The large influx of visitors, who have been here before, speaks well for the place, and it is undeniably visible to all, that out of this bank of sand has grown swiftly the very apex of a settlement wherein the pleasures of thousands of people are centered. Tent City itself has offered to its patrons better comfort this year than ever before. The new palm-roofed cottages have won much favorable comment, and the ocean pier has been a boon to the fishermen. The children's pool has, of course, drawn its large quota of bathers, and the little ones have enjoyed themselves to their hearts' content. The Tent City of Coronado has enjoyed much popularity by the way in which entertainment has been provided for the children and adults. Every few days the little ones of the camp have been gathered together and provided with a general good time, in addition to giving them plenty in the way of refreshments of a kind which is always a delight to children. The "older folks" have had their card parties twice a week, and there has been informal socials of a various character all through the season; in fact, if it were "something to do," one could always find it here this season. The conditions for living has certainly been ideal; the sanitary part of the camp has been looked after in such a manner that not one complaint has been registered by those dwelling here. The streets have been kept neat and clean. The street car service to and from Tent City has been efficient at all times, and one fact that has been particularly noticeable, there has not been a serious accident on the grounds this year. Everybody takes a vacation now-a-days, and no sooner is one summer outing over than folks invariably

A. E. FLOWERS, EDITOR

Today's issue of the TENT CITY NEWS will be the last for the season of 1908. The publishing of the paper commenced with the formal opening of the camp on June 17th, and one thousand copies have been issued every day, making a total of eighty-three thousand copies which have been distributed FREE to campers and patrons of this resort during the season. The NEWS has been well received, in fact there were many many times when the supply could not meet the demand. A number of the advertisers have stated that they have received good "results" from their space, and we take this opportunity of thanking them for their patronage. It is with regret that the NEWS bids adieu to the season of 1908, but hopes it will be here to await you "When Summer Comes Again." A. E. FLOWERS, EDITOR.

Capt. Cresswell, of the Point Loma ferry, has leased the Coronado boat house and took possession Saturday morning. The Captain knows the bay and outside about as well as he knows his own residence, if not a little better, as most of his time is spent on the water. Fishing parties from the big Hotel or across the bay and bay or ocean excursion parties will find the Captain a courteous and obliging gentleman.

Mr. Hammond Beall of Tent 2107, entertained Wednesday with a beach luncheon, in honor of Miss Hazel Ernsting, his guest. The lunch included sandwiches, saratoga chips, deviled eggs, olives, fruit and cake and nougat. The guests were: Misses Viola Ernsting, Clara Parmlee, Adele Harris, Parsons, and Messrs. Archie and Kenneth Kellogg, S. Diberts, "Woody" Woods.

Tommy has lost his hair-pin
And he's ready for a spat;
If he don't find her pretty soon,
He'll wonder where he's at.

Grace will soon be married,
And then she'll raise a din,
She's practising with the broomstick,
Likewise the rolling-pin.

The Silver Gate Song—The beautiful song of the West, as sung by the Empire City Quartett of New York, and O. H. Blanchard, of St. Louis, and many of the leading vaudeville artists in the United States, also the Presidential campaign song "The Ruined Coon," this song was adopted by the Republican convention as the official campaign song, and was sung at the convention.

MY CALIFORNIA HOME

CHORUS:

How I long to be at home among the roses,
How I long to tread the old familiar way.
How I long to see a sweet face ever waiting,
How I long to hear my loved one say,
I knew you would return when duty's over,
I knew success and fame would come to you,
I knew your heart was true, as the trust I
placed in you,
Since you left me on that pleasant sunny day.

THE RUINED COON

CHORUS:

No chickens, no watermillions,
It is too hard work to steal.
I'll hab to lib on crackers and nigger-toe,
Dessert I'll get corn meal.
De Republicans dey is elected,

I'se lost all I had begin to plan for the next season's free-care time.

The thought of pleasant days past, and the hope of others to come, makes acceptable the many working days in a city-pent life. Because of old associations, we desire to return frequently to the same place where very happy times have been passed. This is shown by the Tent City register for each year's book contains the names of early acquaintances. Take it altogether Tent City's reputation as a summer resort has been spread far and wide, and the popularity of the place has been due, not only to the existing conditions which prevail, but to the excellent manner in which the place has been conducted under the able management of Mr. J. S. Hammond, who "As the Man Behind the Gun," has placed this resort on a par with any other summering place in the country.

If you reason with your love, you have yet to experience its zenith. It is more fruitless to argue with the genuine sort than trying to quit cigarettes or stop biting your finger nails.

Those fair-spoken creators, with tongues tuned to sentiment, and mild eyes fixed on the main chance.

"I can't quite convey to you a man's conception of woman." The world, if asked, "when is a virgin not a virgin," would reply, "Nine times out of ten." But a man who has known many women, of all sorts and conditions, gives them more credit, and would almost reverse the insinuation.

His Birthday

Wednesday afternoon last the Hotel del Coronado printery had a little surprise party, the central figure being Mr. T. R. Browne, manager of the office. At a signal from Miss Grace Wells the force marched into the front office, and Mr. Browne was sure some crisis was imminent, and he looked as if he expected every minute would be the next. Tommy McNevin came in with a large bouquet of flowers and a larger smile spread over his countenance. This dispelled all fears of an uprising and Mr. Browne's features began to expand, only to be instantly contracted with surprise when he was handed a beautiful cut glass cigar jar, with a silver cover, on which were engraved his initials in monogram, and it was full of cigars. Another package was a box of 50 "Home Industry" cigars, and still another package, after much unwrapping, revealed two diminutive orphaned pigs. One of the force immediately applied for the position of dry nurse. The surprise was complete in every detail, and Mr. Browne places great value upon his gifts. Another surprise in store for him was the picnic dinner in the evening at Tent City, where he unexpectedly found his sisters and their families, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Quayle, Mrs. Pearson, and his brother H. H. Browne and wife, and Mr. Buser, all quietly seated around a sumptuous spread awaiting the arrival of Mrs. Eno, Mrs. T. R. Browne's mother, who escorted the gentleman to the tent. Mrs. Browne enjoyed all these surprises for her husband just as much as though she had been ignorant of the whole proceedings. The following was found in the cigar jar:

Well, Thomas, this is a grand surprise,
For you on your birthday;
It has been slyly and skilfully planned
By your associates in every way.

'Tis a pleasure for us to greet you,
On this anniversary occasion,
For we feel assured our friendship
Has not suffered by abrasion.

Our exasperating conduct
Has your patience severely taxed;
Yet devotion to your employers
Has never been relaxed.

May your life be long and happy,
May your health always be good;
May your prosperity be prolific,
May you ne'er be misunderstood.

And when fortune smiles upon you,
And prosperity ends your strife;
May your latter days be comfort and peace,
For yourself and affectionate wife.

JAY JAY BEE.
